PROJECTS

Snowman Command Line Application Project - Code

Command Line game where the user tries to guess the word by guessing letters within certain amount of chances

- Using the basic git flow and JavaScript, I defined and called various functions in order to control the flow in creating different code paths or repeating code execution, solved problems using string, arrays and objects
- The game lets the user have a random word, enter guesses, see which letters the user has entered and how many chances the user has left, informs the user if he/she has won or lost and see the correct answer at the end.

Text-based Adventure - Code

- Using the basic git flow and JavaScript, I created constants and variables of different types and use operators to solve problems, defined and called various functions to create different code paths or to repeat code execution
- The user was able to make several fun choices throughout his/her journey and was given a chance to restart the game at the end.

Guessing game lab - Code

Command Line game where the user was able to guess the number within certain amount chances

- Using the basic git flow and JavaScript, I defined and called various functions to create different code paths or to repeat code execution, solved problems using command lines and loops
- The game lets the user have a random number, enter guesses, see if the number was too high or too low, informs the user if he/she has won or lost at the end.
